

JENKINS MADE STRONG FIGHT

Congressman From The Eleventh District Makes Startling Announcement.

BECOMES BITTER IN HIS ARGUMENT

Tells His Audience To Turn Him Down "If They Want To Wipe Wisconsin Off The Political Map"--Lenroot His Opponent.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Hudson, Wis., Aug. 11.—"Turn me down if you want to wipe Wisconsin off the political map. You do not have to have representation in congress if you do not want it."

These were the words of Congressman John J. Jenkins to the people of Hudson in an appeal for votes in his effort to retain his seat in congress from the Eleventh district.

Mr. Jenkins declared that he held a position in congress second only to the speaker. Congressman Jenkins was bitter in his attack upon candidate Lenroot and berated the people of the country, charging them with unpreachableness and forgetfulness as regards public service.

He declared his position on tariff to be midway between protection and free trade and claimed that he favored the employers' liability bill from the beginning.

Congressman Jenkins said that he never voted for a ship subsidy, but that his vote went to secure a faster mail service with foreign ports at the request of President Roosevelt.

"Joseph Cannon never tried to dictate to me," declared Mr. Jenkins in reply to the charge which has been made against him that he was the speaker's tool. "Neither did he place me on the Judiciary committee. Thos. Reed placed me there."

Mr. Jenkins has been in congress since the Fifty-fourth session and has been chairman of the committee on judiciary, one of the most important committees of the lower house for many years.

It was to help Mr. Jenkins that H. J. Castle, his comrade, resigned his office in the capitol to come into the Eleventh district and make speeches in behalf of his friend.

The fight has been a most bitter one and Lenroot has had the advantage of having begun early in the season before Jenkins could leave congress.

CASTLE WILL MAKE MUCH TROUBLE YET

Former Land Commissioner Divorced From His Job For Political Activities.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 11.—Following the action of Secretary of State Frear and State Treasurer Dahl in separating H. J. Castle from his position as chief clerk of the state land office because he proposed to make campaign speeches against the nomination of John M. Nelson for congress in the second district and of L. L. Leopold in the eleventh district, friends of Mr. Castle have charged that employees in the capitol, even under the restraint of civil service rules, have devoted time to political work with the knowledge and acquiescence of Secretary Frear and Treasurer Dahl. It is asserted that A. D. Campbell, commissioner of immigration, a subordinate of Secretary of State Frear, devoted three weeks to working for Leopold in the eleventh district, and that while doing this political work was being paid by the state salary and expenses. It is also declared that two state factory inspectors were permitted to devote their time while under state salary and charging expenses to the state, in the interests of the congressional candidate friends of the men who have turned Mr. Castle out for proposing to devote the vacation allowed by law to political work. It is likewise charged that L. B. Dresser, a member of the state board of control, has also given much of his state paid time to political work. Friends of Mr. Castle are framing a demand that these matter be investigated and that if a rule against political work by state employees be laid down it be observed regardless of the factional character of the work.

The convention will continue over Wednesday and Thursday.

ROUTINE BUSINESS FOR CONVENTION

Nevertheless Texas Democrats Display Much Enthusiasm at Gathering.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 11.—Enthusiasm appeared to be the keynote at the opening of the democratic state convention here today. Several thousand delegates and visitors filled the convention hall when the gathering was called to order promptly at noon. Following the opening address, the convention will proceed to ratify the results of the recent state primary, elect state committee and adopt a platform for the coming campaign. Despite the fact that busyness of the convention is largely of a routine character an unusual amount of enthusiasm is displayed, which the party leaders interpret as pointing to a vigorous and harmonious campaign in Texas this fall.

DEFINES ISSUES

AT THE FIRST POLITICAL RALLY OF THE YEAR.

SAYS HE WILL NOT WITHDRAW

From Senatorial Contest And That
La Follette Prefers No One to Him
Audience Small But Attentive.

Francis E. McGovern, district attorney of Milwaukee county and republican candidate for the United States Senate, addressed a small but attentive audience of about 130 voters at the Myers theatre last evening. The Imperial band played, several numbers on the streets and in the opera house immediately preceding the speech but in competition with a political rally "indoors the warm moonlight evening proved too great a lure.

Victor P. Richardson, after calling the attention of the audience to the fact that for the first time in the history of the state they were to have an opportunity to express directly their preferences as to who should represent them in the United States Senate, introduced the Milwaukeeans as "a prosecutor of all manner of holding—able, fearless, conscientious, honest, and what all manner men admire—a fighting man." We already have in the United States Senate La Follette—leader in the progressive movement, and I believe that we should send there a man who is able and willing to addit him."

Will Abide By Primary.

Mr. McGovern, in his opening remarks, apparently placed himself on record as willing to abide by the result of the primaries. The choice expressed by voters, he said, will not be conclusive because, under our federal constitution, the actual election of a United States senator still remains with the state legislature. "Still, I believe that the man who receives the republican nomination three weeks from tomorrow will be the United States Senator, and because I believe it, I have thought it fit and proper that those who seek the office should present themselves and define the issues in order that their qualifications to represent the people of Wisconsin may be ascertained."

Railroad and Trust Regulation.

The great issue, he said, was concerned with the regulation of corporations, tariff revision, and the enforcement of the law against all offenders, rich or poor. It might be reduced to this question: "Shall the great power of government be exercised by organized wealth for the benefit of a few or by all the people in their own behalf?" The evolutionary processes by which wealth and power had been centralized in the fields of transportation, manufacturing, finance, and public affairs were then dealt with at considerable length, special attention being given to the six great groups of railroads managed by as many groups of men, the Standard Oil Co., the anthracite coal trust, the U. S. Steel trust whose capital represents one-sixty-seventh of the total wealth of United States, and the influences which all of these organizations were able to exert on government. The American people, declared the speaker, do not complain because things are done now on a grand scale but they do insist that the large corporations shall be managed as honestly as the small ones. Unlike the individual, who, if guided in his actions largely by self-interest, also has a heart and affections and must conform to certain precepts or suffer ostracism in his community, the corporation checks fail to exert any influence. Its abuses cannot be remedied from within nor can government bring relief so long as it is not truly representative of the people. In this connection the speaker pointed out a number of concrete illustrations of misgovernment in cities and states and outlined his own battle with the grafters and box rule in Milwaukee. He paid his respects to Rhode Island and Senator Aldrich, "five times elected—the last but an expense of $200,000," and quoted Senator La Follette as declaring that the most important bill before the last congress was jumbled through the House with but thirty minutes of debate and passed by violation of the laws of the Senate. "Less than one dozen men dictate what bills shall pass and what shall not."

Eulogized La Follette.

In searching for the remedies for widespread abuses, Mr. McGovern endorsed the progressive program in Wisconsin and its champion, Senator La Follette, asserting among other things, that the railroads, under more adequate regulation in Wisconsin, were paying $600,000 more annually into the state treasury than ever before; that shippers saved $1,170,000 in freight rates last year; and that the railroads had not only not suffered but had actually increased their receipts by $5,300,000 during the same period.

The Rival Candidates:

It seemed to the speaker that it was the wisdom of the representatives of this state to go into the larger field and carry on the same work there which had been done in Wisconsin, remained for the voters to say whether or not this should be done.

There were candidates of every grade in the senatorial contest. If they wanted a man who had championed these things in the past, and who was in general kindhearted and a good neighbor, but who when he went to the United States senate voted against every proposition along these lines, they could have him. If they wanted an affable business man who never stated his position on any question—good angel and devil to all men—they could have him. If they wanted a man who was pleasant and agreeable, and non-combative, who when in the legislature, voted on the right side but, during the preceding fight never spent a cent or helped (the cause) in any way, they could have him. If they wanted a man who was fearless, who let the people know, who at no time indulged in equivocation, they could have him also. "I was out on the firing-line all the time. You sent your Senator to Washington and he stands almost alone there. If I'm nominated for this office I'll go down and continue the fight."

Will Not Withdraw.

In conclusion Mr. McGovern argued for a tariff high enough and no higher than is sufficient to cover the difference in the cost of manufacturing in this country and abroad, and declared himself in favor of scientific revision by a commission of experts. He assured his hearers that Senator La Follette preferred no candidate to him and that he was in the contest to the finish.

GOOD REASONS.

Last evening Francis E. McGovern, who is described as Milwaukee's "fighting district attorney," spoke at the Myers theatre, setting forth his claims to recognition as a candidate for the United States senatorship now held by Isaac Stephenson. Mr. McGovern is a good speaker and is evidently in earnest in his own behalf but he does not advance the real arguments why he should be chosen. The Milwaukee Free Press sums up the reasons for Mr. Stephenson's renomination as follows and they are worth considering:

"There is increasing evidence at the time for the primary approaches that the people of the state will vote to return Mr. Stephenson to the senate. There is not a single reason why they should not. There are many reasons why they should.

Their sober judgment will insist on Mr. Stephenson's re-election, because he was the one comprehensive business man who earliest recognized the great great evils in public and business life and insisted on their correction.

"Because he has been a great factor in the development of the state, creating opportunities for hundreds of men to make homes for themselves and their families, and because, as a large employer of labor, he has always so treated his workmen that he has bound them to him by ties of friendship and affection.

"Because, as a legislator, his influence has always been effectively exerted for the advancement of the state and its people, and for every measure which would help to promote their happiness and material welfare.

"Because he has always used his wealth to promote the general good, giving generously to every worthy cause, whether it be educational or religious.

"Because he is one of those men who always accomplish what he acts out to do, whether it is to help secure a Sturgeon Bay canal of immense importance to producers and shipping interests; to help pass an oleomargarine bill which will protect the great dairy interests of the state, to secure pensions for worthy veterans, and their widows, or to make government more responsive to the popular will and to keep open the door of opportunity by just legislation.

"Because he has insisted on the reform of tariff abuses and because from the start of the reform movement in Wisconsin he has stood strongly and squarely with those who were saying day by day to the big corporations, 'Conduct your business in obedience to the law and keep your corrupting hands off legislation.'

"The people of Wisconsin will honor themselves by returning to the United States senate the man who has fought their battles and who has rendered them these great services."

TWO ISSUES.

Mr. Bryan seems disposed to make government guarantee of bank deposits as one of the main features of his campaign while Mr. Taft is disposed to put the administration of the courts in the forefront.

Mr. Taft's paramount issue is much broader than Mr. Bryan's because the administration of justice lies at the basis of all our prosperity. Mr. Bryan holds that we should legislate in the matter of guaranteed deposits from the standpoint of the depositor rather than the banker. But both depositor and banker, farmer and manufacturer, laborer and capitalist, rich man and poor man, are interested in the equitable and prompt administration of justice.

Mr. Taft's issue makes him stand as the protector of property, for the courts are the main supporters of the rights of property, and every capitalist, large and small, is vitally interested in maintaining the courts in their independence and integrity. But Mr. Taft would make the administration of law not only a defense of fundamental rights, but also prompt in its action and cheaper in its operations, so that the poor man may obtain as quick and as effective redress from the courts as any corporation or rich capitalist. This is an issue therefore that addresses itself to all alike.

THE EXAMPLE.

This morning's dispatches announced that Robert Marion La Follette is to follow the lead of his dear friend William Jennings Bryan and start a paper or a magazine, either in Milwaukee or Madison, in which he can extol his own personal ideals; of which he can be the editor without fear of the fatal editorial blue pencil on his choice utterances. It is said that the faithful all over the state have been sounded on the proposition and that even advertisers have been approached. If this is true, we may expect Wisconsin to become the home of a second Commoner, the example of the Nebraska gentleman having evidently been contagious.

JUST FOR POLITICS.

It appears to make a difference for whom B. J. Castle, late of the land office, campaigned for. He could take off his coat and shout for La Follette, or Frear, or Davidson, and still draw state pay; but when he opposed John Nelson or Irving Lehnen or came his official head. While he has campaigned in the past for the reformers and done it during his regular working hours, he could not devote his vacation period to campaigning against them. It makes a difference, for whom the work is done, whether it is reform or not.

A CONTRAST.

It is remarkable, come to think of it, how keen the public interest was in what Mr. Taft would say in his speech of acceptance, and with what comparative indifference the public await Mr. Bryan's speech of acceptance.

And yet it was only just twelve years ago in August, 1896, that a speech by Mr. Bryan in Madison Square Garden was the sensation of the year in New York.

Thor. S. Nolan is causing some consternation in the Cooper camp by his aggressive campaign work right in the heart of the enemy's country. The postmasters who control papers in the district are fluttering about like setting hens, wondering what it is all about. The government ruling regarding campaigning by postmen is a dead letter in this district at least.

One man says that he going to vote for Stephenson because he has lots of money and would not need to graft if he went down to Washington as a younger and poorer man might be tempted to. There is a new campaign argument that was delivered on the streets of Janesville last evening.

The state fair in Milwaukee this year promises to be one of the finest of its kind in the west; Janesville should be particularly interested with many Janesville men prominent in its management.

Bryan is soon to be told of the great honor which he succeeded in having thrust upon himself at Denver, but somehow few people are interested.

So there promises to be fun at the next council meeting? Well, it has been a joke all along, since two or three men tried to run things.

Mr. Hitchcock is going to classify his campaign spell-binders by card index, so that he will know just what each one can do.

Chileno has not yet discovered what hit them last Saturday. The primary day was too strenuous for many.

It is too hot weather to begin campaigning yet.

The primaries are just three weeks off to day.

PRESS COMMENT.

Such is His Determination.
Chicago News: Mr. Hearst is to make a series of speeches through the country and he will have good audiences if he has to hire them.

Here is a Real Menace.
Exchange: Japan is likely to make baseball its national game. If Japan can beat Uncle Sam at the sport, Mr. Hobson will be justified in getting excited.

Economy on Shipboard.
Madison Journal: Secretary Metcalf has ordered larger prunes for the navy. That battleship cruise around the world cost money and must be made up some way.

Who's "It" and Why?
La Crosse Leader-Press: Between Stephen, whom Senator La Follette is supposed to favor this year; Stephen, whom he openly boasted last year; Cook, with whom he was friendly a little further back, and Mc-

Govern, whom he may be disposed to encourage a year hence, even those who get their inspiration from the senior senator may be excused for being confused.

Can't Solve the Vanish.
Milwaukee Journal: An Oshkosh man is said to be slowly worrying himself to death over what becomes of the wind when it doesn't blow. Probably he has never listened to a campaign speech.

Broom That Sweeps No More.
St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Once Holland's warships sailed the Channel with a broom at the masthead as a token of mastery of the sea. It is easy to take a minor place when a nation allows its may to run down.

It's No Idle Curiosity.
Milwaukee News: Mr. Harriman says that he doesn't see why the American people persist in showing such a deep interest in his private affairs. Mr. Harriman seems to forget occasionally that he is a public utility.

Quoth the Raven: "Nevermore!"
Exchange: William R. Hearst says he will never again be a candidate for office. He has evidently made up his mind that if nominated he could not be elected, and if elected somebody would count him out.

Fair But Non-Partisan.
Shawano Journal: The Pittsburgh parents of triplets have named their children after Bryan, Taft and Roosevelt. Although this looks like an effort at non-partisanship, it will be noted that the republicans are in the majority.

Extension of Wireless.
Exchange: Wireless messages are to be sent across the Atlantic from the top of the Eiffel Tower. A daily chat between Paris and the New York skyscrapers will be a pleasing accompaniment of the flying machine experiments.

And Fourteen Are a Plenty.
Racine Journal: The two congressional candidates in this district will be the sitting member, Congressman Cooper and Thomas Nolan of Janesville. Mr. Nolan's petition is largely signed. He is a Janesville lawyer and has many friends in the district. Mr. Cooper has served fourteen years and it renominated which means an election, will make sixteen years in Congress.

Does Seem Pretty Petty.
Racine Journal: About the smallest exhibition of late is that of the socialist party ordering the Milwaukee aldermen of their party not play in a baseball game with the Philadelphia nine. As to party tyranny it is not only unknown in other parties but a very boorish exhibition. For a party making such a fuss about personal rights, this surely takes the cake.

First Real Cure of Lockjaw.
Grand Rapids Herald: The Mayo Clinic Institute of Pittsburgh announces what it claims to be the first actual cure of tetanus—after once well developed, though fairly good success attended the use of anti-toxin both as a preventative and when promptly resorted to on the first symptoms. Contracting infections into the spinal column of a magnesium sulphate solution of gradually increasing strength so successfully.

More Than a Little is Doing.
Evansville Enterprise: There doesn't seem to be any very great enthusiasm developed in the local political campaign yet. It must be that the political leaders are waiting for cooler weather. The Janesville Gazette keeps banging away for its candidate for congress, Mr. Nolan, but nobody is making any bets on him so far as we have learned. It looks as if the people were very well satisfied with Congressman Cooper's record, were going to send him back again. Still, there is so little doing that it is not easy to get a hunch which way things are going.

Sense vs. Sentiment.
Fond du Lac Reporter: At its last meeting the common council passed a new ordinance which prohibits any vehicle from passing through a funeral procession. Strictly enforced, this ordinance could compel a railroad train, a street car, a doctor hurrying to the aid of a dying patient, the fire department on its dash to a blaze in the heart of the city or the police patrol rushing to answer a riot call, to stop short and wait for a half mile funeral procession, headed by a corps that is in no hurry at all, to pass. The Reporter has as much respect for the dead as anyone else but there are times when the living are entitled to first consideration and we hope that in cases like those cited above the ordinance will be ignored.

Just Horse Play.
Green Bay Gazette: Much has been said of late regarding publicity of campaign contributions and expenses, especially in the case of national candidates, but it remained for Hatton's campaign manager to carry it to the limit of ridicule. Major McElroy announced that his candidate's campaign would be fully aboveboard and that at the end of each two weeks of the campaign a financial statement would be made public. At that time he made the first of this series of statements to the effect that Hatton had contributed $1,000 and that something over $700 had been expended. This carries little or no information of value to the public. It was a foregone conclusion that Hatton would put some money into his campaign and it would have been much more to the point to have itemized the $700 expenditure. This little bluff on the part of Manager McElroy is nothing more than a travesty on the principles of financial publicity urged by both of the candidates for president, and will be taken as such.

The Rock River Valley.
Heldow News: It is no wonder that Black Hawk was lost to give up the ownership of the Rock River Valley, with its glorious scenery, its abundant fertility, and its great possibilities in those days of abundance of fish and game.

The game has disappeared before the advance of the white man and the fish are not so plentiful as they once were, but the beauty of the valley remains and its great possibilities of future development are still there. The banks of the river, the water power of the river has had much to do with the development of the cities of Janesville, Beloit, Rockford, Oregon, Dixon and Sterling, and now a new development of the river's potentialities is well under way.

The government has built a splendid dam above the city of Sterling and constructed a canal from the dam 25 miles long to feed the Illinois and Mississippi canal, familiarly known as the Hennepin canal, which has been built by the Mississippi to the Illinois rivers, a distance of 59 miles, and tapping the coal region of Illinois, thus bringing cheap coal to the manufacturing cities of the Rock River Valley.

Future improvements are contemplated, which will enable the cities of the upper Rock to take advantage of cheap fuel transportation. Coal barges can now deliver their freight in Sterling, and a comparatively little labor will enable them to reach Dixon.

The ultimate design is to complete the waterway as far up the river as Janesville.

Do you remember what Paul Jones said? The other commander, it seems, wanted to know. If Mr. Jones had "struck his colors," whereupon our doughty commodore sent back word that "he hadn't begun to fight yet." The Imperial Band will continue playing for "the people" in front of The White House store on South River St. each Wednesday evening. Everybody will wake up and get in the game. The Rummage Sale will give you bargains every day this week.

Two Killed by "Damp" in Well.
Cherokee, Tenn., Aug. 11.—Two men lie dead and a third is dying as a result of their efforts to repair an old well on a farm three miles from town.

The Swanson brothers went down in the well and both perished in a few moments from inhaling the "damp."

Albert Hansen followed them down and was nearly dead when some farmhands pulled him out.

Fatal Quarrel Over Sandwich.
Honolulu, Mo., Aug. 11.—A quarrel over a ham sandwich in a local restaurant Monday afternoon resulted in the death of William V. Whitney, a traveling salesman from St. Louis, who was shot and instantly killed by John McWilliams, a farmer living in Marion county.

Forest Fires in Idaho.
Spokane, Wash., Aug. 11.—The forest fires raging in northern Idaho are doing an immense amount of damage in the timber sections. Over 200 men have been sent to aid those already fighting the fires and it is believed they will soon be under control.

TICKET OF "HOMERULERS."

Republican Faction in Tennessee Nominates T. A. Wright.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 11.—The convention of the Republicans of Tennessee designated as "The Homerulers" Monday afternoon nominated the following ticket:

For governor, T. Asbury Wright of Rockwood.

For railroad commissioner, T. A. Wright of Chattanooga.

The convention was called to order by John C. Houck of Knoxville, one of the leaders of the so-called insurgents. Col. W. Gettys was the permanent chairman.

Following is the plank on prohibition: "We are in favor of state-wide prohibition by the extension of the provisions of the existing four-mile law to every portion of the state by our next legislature."

THREE KILLED IN COLLISION.

Traction Cars Crash Near Piqua, O., with Fatal Results.

Piqua, O., Aug. 11.—Three persons were killed and probably 25 fatally injured in a collision between two ill-fated traction cars on the Western Ohio Traction line, nine miles north of Piqua, Monday night.

The dead: James Kehoe, Dayton, O.; William McClellan, Lockington, O.; William Balloy, motorman, Piqua, O.

Only one man, P. F. Saver of Sidney, O., escaped injury.

Twenty-five automobiles from Piqua and Sidney were rushed to the scene of the accident and conveyed the injured to a quickly improvised hospital at the Shelby county infirmary and to their homes.

The cause of the wreck is thought to be a misunderstanding of the orders.

REGISTRATION DAY
TUESDAY, AUG. 25

Citizens who Expected to Vote at September Primary and November Election Must be Enrolled at that Time.

Tuesday, August 25, is the day set for the registration of voters in cities exceeding 5,000 population and all entitled to the suffrage should see to it that their names are placed upon the new lists at that time. It is not necessary for the voter to appear in person if he has any other means of acquainting the board with the fact that he is entitled to vote. The last sitting of the registration board will take place on October 27, just one week before election day, November 3, and at that time those who have not already qualified are required to appear in person. However, the names of all those voting at the primaries will have been transferred to the registration lists. At the primaries those names that have not been entered on the lists through oversight or, in the case of new voters, failure to qualify, may be sworn in and permitted to cast ballots after going through the requisite red tape.

NAG STOLEN FROM HANSON PLACE WAS FOUND TODAY

But Wagon And Harness Are Still Missing—Act Seems to Have Been Prompted by Malice.

About eleven o'clock last evening a horse, wagon, and harness were taken from the John Hanson place which is located near the city limits in the First ward. Officers traced the outfit as far as the stone crusher plant where the trail was lost. The animal was taken from the barn and hitched to the vehicle while Mr. Hanson was away from home. This morning the horse was discovered roaming around loose in that locality and a bag of feed which had been in the wagon was also located. The wagon and harness are still missing. From all appearances the guilty parties were prompted by malice rather than by any hope of gain.

SIGNS

There are a good many erroneous ideas about the cost of Electric Signs, but, if you will inquire into our flat rate proposition it will puncture a few of them.

When you think of it it seems strange that any store in Janesville should be without the sign of life and progress.

When you note the prices we make it will seem stranger still.

But, why don't YOU put up a sign?

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 11, 1868.—Lively—As the time for the county convention approaches there is decided activity among the various candidates for the several offices. We have seen quite a number of them in town today with chain and compass, taking the lay of the land. Whether it all looks fair to them we are unable to say.

Look Out For Her.—The woman who imposed upon me of one kind hurted citizens some months since, representing that she had been recently burned out of house and home at Clinton, and who succeeded in getting considerable help here, has started out again on her travels with a new story. She is making a good thing out of beggary and ought not to be encouraged.

Serious Accident at Jefferson.—Yesterday afternoon at Jefferson, John Krock, who lives at Ft. Atkinson, attempted to cross the railroad track in front of the down coming passenger train, and was struck by the engine, thrown and run over. He was brought to Ft. Atkinson and one of his legs was amputated at the knee. He was interdicted at the time of the accident and his misfortune results from that cause. He has a wife and several children. No blame is attached to the crew of the train.

Suez Canal.—Work on the canal across the Isthmus of Suez is still progressing. The sum of $57,000,000 has already been expended upon it, and the total cost, when it is finished, will be estimated to be $100,000,000, or perhaps, including the necessary docks at each end, $100,000,000. About sixty miles of it is now used for winter transit.

Telegraph Line.—Mexico city is about to come within hailing distance of our Atlantic cities. General Escobedo and his soldiers are busily employed on a telegraph line running from the capital to Matamoras. Meanwhile our telegraphs near the Mexican frontier are within a short distance of Brownsville, about opposite to Matamoras.

Accounts received daily from Spain, represent that the disturbed condition of the country is leading to disastrous results. The latest advised from Madrid that a financial crisis is expected.

Lemana., Aug. 11.—After two false starts Wilbur Wright, the Dayton aeropilot, made a successful ascent here shortly before eight o'clock Monday evening. The machine flew about two kilometers (1.24 miles) in 14 minutes.

Owing to the lateness of the hour Mr. Wright decided not to try a longer run. The flight was viewed by several thousand people.

The evolutions of Monday were carried out with the same ease and mastery as those of Saturday. Mr. Wright caused the machine to swoop out of a direct line of flight and to describe two loops, like a great figure eight.

Two False Starts Made.

The first false start was due to the clumsiness of an assistant who held on to the aeroplane too long, thereby causing its right wing to touch the ground and giving the machine such an unmanageable tilt to starboard that Mr. Wright made a landing after traveling only 50 feet.

On the second trial Mr. Wright got away well and the machine rose to 30 feet. It had traversed 400 feet when suddenly it approached too near the branches of some trees. The motor did not perform its functions properly and Mr. Wright descended in good style.

Applause Greets Success.

Undismayed by these two failures Mr. Wright, just at dusk, again ascended and this time sailed up and down the field at varying heights, and finally landed directly in front of the grandstand to the accompaniment of a burst of applause.

M. Dolgoruky., the well-known aeronaut, who was the first person to solo Mr. Wright's machine after the exhibition, said that Mr. Wright certainly was a marvel. He did not consider that the mishap denoted doubtful control of the aeroplane. Leon Bollee, another expert, was of the opinion that the Wright machine showed the greatest perfection of any he had seen. "I consider Mr. Wright a genius," added M. Bollee. "His only mistake lies in his trying to make all the parts of his machine himself, for with the aid of experts in their manufacture he undoubtedly would have a finer and better whole."

Boston Steel Men Arrested.

Boston, Aug. 11.—Alfred E. Cox, treasurer and general manager of the Atlantic Steel works at East Boston, and Edward P. Robinson, who is connected with the same company, were arrested Monday afternoon on a secret indictment recently returned and charging them with conspiracy to defraud the city of Boston through collusive bids for city contracts.

Mrs. D. L. Dresser Obtains Divorce.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Daniel Leroy Dresser, who last February established residence in Sioux Falls, was granted an absolute divorce Monday from Daniel Dresser, president of the Ship Building Trust and of the Trust Company of the Republic of New York City, on the ground of desertion.

TANNAHER.—Raised biscuits from Gold Medal Flour are excellent.

Jane Cable

By...

GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON,

Author of "Beverly of Graustark," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD & COMPANY

CHAPTER XXI.

DAVID CABLE lost no time in hurrying away from Chicago with his wife and Jane. They were whisked westward in his private car on the second day after the Bannister exposure. Broken-spirited, Jane neared in all their plans. She seemed no one in a stupor, comprehending yet unresponsive to the pain that enveloped her.

"I can't see any one that I know here," she said listlessly. "Oh, the thought of what they are saying!" They did not tell her that Graydon had enlisted as a private soldier in the United States army. Jane only knew that she loved him and that the bar sinister existed.

Cable's devotion to her was beautiful. He could not have been more tender had she been his own daughter instead of his wife's imposition.

Jane was ill in Pasadena for many weeks. Her depressed condition made her recovery doubtful. It was plain to two persons, at least, that she did not care whether she lived or died. The physicians were puzzled, but no explanation was offered by the Cables. It was not until certain Chinese sojourners generously spread the news that the cause of her breakdown became apparent to the good doctors. Before many days the girl who sat wan and distract upon the flower shaded plazas was an object of curiosity to fashionable Pasadena. As soon as she was strong enough to endure the trip the hunted trio took off Pasadena and fled northward.

San Francisco afforded relief in privacy. Jane's spirits began to revive. There had not been nor was there ever to be any mention of that terrible night and the revelations. What she may have felt and suffered in secret could only be conjectured by those who loved her. Bannister's name was never uttered. His fate remained unknown to her. The faraway, unhappy look in her eyes proved to them that Graydon was never out of her thoughts.

Jane Cable was in China when Mrs. Cable received word from her sister, once Kate Coleman, that she soon would reach San Francisco with her husband, bound for the Philippines. Kate was the wife of West Pointer who had achieved the rank of colonel in the volunteers by virtue of political necessity. His regiment had been ordered to the islands, and she was accompanying him with their daughter, a girl of sixteen.

Colonel Harbin had seen pleasant service at the eastern posts, where his wife had attained a certain kind of social distinction in the army fast set.

She was not especially charmed by the prospect ahead of her in the Philippines. But the new colonel was a strict disciplinarian and off the field. He expected to be a brigadier general if fortune and favoritism supported him long enough. Mrs. Harbin could never be anything more than a private in the ranks, so far as her estimation of distinction was concerned.

His daughter, Ethel, had, by means of no, uncertain, ingenuous, advanced, a weeks before sailing. One of the lieutenants was a Chinese boy and an acquaintance of Graydon Bannister. It was from him that Jane learned that her sweetheart was a soldier in the service, doubtless now in Luzon.

A week before the sailing of Colonel Harbin's transport Jane suddenly announced that she had one desire on earth, and that was to go to Manila with her aunt. She did not present her plea with the usual claim that she wanted to be of service to her country. She was not asking to go out as a heroine of the ordinary type. Instead she simply announced that she wanted to go as a temporary member of Colonel Harbin's family, to endure their hardships and to enjoy their enthusiasm. Mrs. Cable recognized the true motive, however.

Her pleadings were in vain. The Harbins had kindly urged Jane to join them. Telegrams flew back and forth across the continent, and David Cable came on to present his futile objections.

When the great transport sailed away, Jane Cable was one of her passengers, the ward of the regiment.

"It's just for a little while, dad," she said wistfully at the dock: "In few months, I'll think of you every minute I'm away."

The blood of the man in the service was calling to her. The ocean was between them. The longing to be near him, to tread the same soil, had conquered in the eternal battle of love. After all, no matter how the end was attained, she was a creature of life, brought into the world to love and to be loved. She put the past behind her and began to build a new future—a future in which the adoration of Graydon Bannister was the foundation. The hope that makes all human averages was at the work of reconstruction; youth was the builder. The months of destruction had not left a hopeless ruin as the heritage of dead impulses.

The world grew brighter as the ship forged westward. Each day sent warmer blood into her veins and a deeper light into her eyes. The new life was not inspired by the longing to be his wife, but to see him again and to comfort him. She would be no man's wife.

At last one hot, soft morning in early July the great transport slipped past Corregidor and turned its nose toward Manila bay, past Cavite, toward the anchorage which ended the long voyage. The city of Manila lay stretched out before them—Manila, the new American capital.

The troops were marched off to quarters and the Harbins, with Jane Cable, reported at once to the Orient, where they were to live prior to taking a house in Ermita or San Miguel. The campaign was not being pushed vigorously at this time. It was the rainy season. Desultory fighting was going on between the troops and the insurgents. There were numerous scouting and exploring expeditions into the enemy's country.

A week elapsed before Jane could find the opportunity to make inquiries concerning the whereabouts of Graydon Bannister. Her thoughts had been of nothing else; her energies had been tempered by the indulgence of the overzealous. She was pretty. Ethel Harbin had made life endurable for the gay young officers who came over on the ship. The pretty wives of certain captains and lieutenants had small scope for their blandishments at close range. Difficulties were hard to manage in space so small. The two girls were therefore in a state of sleep most of the time. The subject following fell away perceptibly when the broader field of action on shore gave their married sisters a chance to maneuver with some degree of security. A faithful few remained in train, however. Ethel Harbin, like the Ingenuo in the play, had each finger clutched but tightly wrapped with a breathing uniform of blue. It must be admitted in shame, however, that she changed the bandages often and without ceremony or ceremony.

Jane's admirers were in love with her. She was not the sort to inspire idle fancies. In any event, it looked a long time to these chaps before they could get back to the States, and she was worth while.

Perhaps her most devoted admirer was Lieutenant Bray. Good looking and coming from an excellent southern family, he was a great favorite with all. Jane liked him better than any of the rest. She would have liked him still better had he been able to resist a tendency to boast of the stock from which he had sprung. The knowledge of her disadvantages in life, the contrast between their respective positions, all tended to emphasize the irony of fate, and she often found herself wondering how this sprig of true aristocracy would conduct himself if he discovered that, after all, she was only a foundling.

It was Lieutenant Bray who made inquiries at general headquarters and found, after considerable trouble, that Graydon Bannister's company was in the north, subject to the requirements of Young, chief of scouts.

It was Lieutenant Bray who made inquiries among the officers fresh from the banks of the Hudson put new life into the recluses. The regiment was to remain at the Presidio for several months for Jane. She tired of the intentions of men; she sickened with longing and anxiety. Day after day she prayed that the troops in the north might be relieved. She watched for the order that would call for their return from the wet lands above. Sickness was prevalent among the fighting corps; the wet season had undermined the health of many. Constant news came down to Manila of the minor engagements, and she looked at every report for news of Graydon. Colonel Harbin occasionally had private messages from the north. She heard of Graydon's bravery more than once and glowed with pride. Down in her tired, anxious heart she was wondering if it were possible for her to go to the front in any capacity.

At last with October came the waning of the rainy season. November brought active fighting. A general movement of the troops was directed against Aguilanillo. In his prime as a leader he controlled the north, and his capture was imperative. Lawton and Young began operations on the right, McArthur on the center, with Wheaton pushing forward on the extreme left. The insurgents fell back from Tuguegarao. There were many big flights at San Jacinto and other places now famous in history.

Yates Managers Refuse to Concede Defeat—Politicians Say Lorimer is Killed as State Leader.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Gov. Doneen's majority over Richard Yates for the Republican nomination for governor continued to climb Monday rather than decrease, as the Yates managers declared it would with later returns.

Gov. Doneen in the afternoon over the long-distance telephone said that late reports coming to him showed that his majority was on the increase. The calculators insist it will reach 15,000 over the Yates vote.

The Yates people were stubbornly hanging hopes to a lost cause. Len Small, at headquarters in the Stratford hotel, was unwilling to concede that he and William Lorimer had been vanquished by their old political foes, Doneen.

Small said: "I believe complete official returns will show Yates nominated. He gave no figures to justify the assertion."

Privately Admitted by Yates.
Mr. Yates was at the Stratford hotel and those who know him well declare that he will not publicly admit defeat until the official figures are at hand. The former governor privately conceded that Doneen beat him by more than 8,000 votes, according to report that reached Chicago from the Yates headquarters in Springfield.

The Yates managers are insisting that they have carried Hancock county by 250 votes. Senator Orville F.erry, the Republican leader in that section, wired the governor's office that Hancock had rolled up 360 majority for Doneen.

Official Figures Are Slow.
Official returns are slow in coming because of the fact that officials have been working night and day in counting the ballots and getting out the figures on the heads of tickets.

Seasoned politicians declared that the senatorial fight will be carried to the legislature and bitter strife between Congressman Foss and Senator Hopkins in the Republican caucus at Springfield next January is predicted. Late returning, it is said, may cut down the Hopkins plurality over Foss to less than 18,000.

Hard Blow for Lorimer.
Doneen's victory over Yates is one of the hardest blows ever dealt to Congressman Lorimer, say the politicians. They say it has put Lorimer out as a state leader for good and that he will be unable to rally his support substantial interests. The report is general that the Yates canvass cost $250,000, and it is said Lorimer never before put forth anything like the effort he did to rout Doneen. He rallied every Democratic aid of past alliances in the big fight and from downstate comes word that old-time Republicans are decrying Lorimer methods.

Democratic chiefs are ready to deny that they entered into collusion with Lorimer. They blamed the saloonkeepers and gamblers, asserting that this element went out in force to down State's Attorney Headly and succeeded in rallying Democrats to their aid over the protest of ward leaders and party chiefs generally.

ACCUSES 67 RAILROADS

COMMISSION OF TEXAS FILES CONSPIRACY CHARGES.

Recent Increase of Freight Rates Basis for Complaint to Interstate Commerce Body.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The railroad commission of Texas Monday filed a formal complaint with the interstate commerce commission against 67 railroads and other common carriers, alleging a conspiracy on the part of the defendants through the Southwestern Traffic association for the suppression of competition and restraint of trade in the recent action increasing freight rates to common points in Texas.

The commission will forward notice of this complaint to all the carriers involved and will give them 15 days to reply, the usual period allowed for answering a complaint being 20 days. The commission will expedite this case as much as possible on account of its widespread importance.

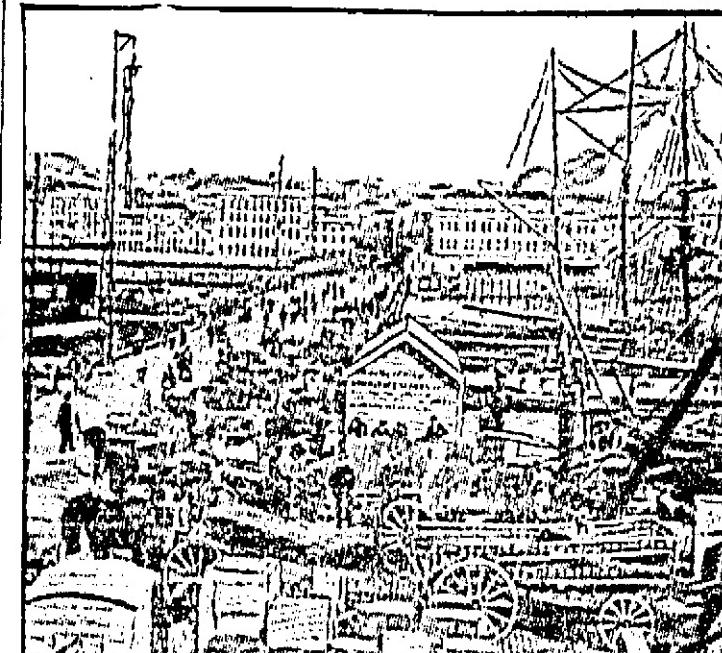

The complaint undertakes to compare the alleged cost of maintenance and operation of the railroads with the actual cost, and the claimed indebtedness, which is supposed to justify the increase, with the actual indebtedness. The railroad commission of Texas, it appears, has appraised the cost of construction and operation of the roads as well as the actual indebtedness upon which the rates may be fairly based.

It declares that the increased rates will fall primarily upon the commodities of prime utility and daily necessity; that they will seriously disturb trade relations, causing loss to shippers and the consuming public.

Cupid's Lament.

THE WHARVES OF AUCKLAND HARBOR, OFF WHICH UNCLE SAM'S FLEET IS ANCHORED.

The pride of the American navy is on the globe. Here, it would seem, the world anchored off the beautiful city people are worthy and capable of self-government. As they government in its fullest meaning. All approach this harbor along the coast, minor disputes are settled by a tribunal—they note various sights that nowhere else can be seen, which renders fair and square dealing and these frequently against the capital. The eight-hour law as regards laboring men prevails and this includes the clerks. In the stores as well as the factory labor. All construction for the government is done directly by the government, instead of through sub-directors and any profits which accrue are divided among the men who have aided in the construction, even to the man who carried the load. Americans may learn many things from this little island on the South Pacific, although many of the ideal conditions prevailing there are at the present time impossible in the United States. The government ownership of all railroads, telegraph and telephones prevail and there are undoubtedly no people in the world who are so earnestly striving for the betterment of their brothers as these natives of New Zealand.

Cheapness vs. Quality

In the matter of food you can't afford to sacrifice Quality for Cheapness. Economy is right and good but inferior food products are dear at any price.

REVERO GARDEN HOSE

Cut in any length to suit the customer.

"REVERO" Hose is seamless throughout.

The construction consists of a special double braiding of tightly twisted cotton yarn.

The cover is composed of tough flexible rubber to withstand wear and abuse.

The complete hose is vulcanized in our patented rigid mold under a high internal pressure, which forces the rubber and fabric together in a compact, inseparable body.

You will appreciate the fact that "REVERO" is made in continuous lengths up to 500 feet, thus avoiding remnants.

A garden hose that is light, strong, very flexible.

Will not burst or kink.
